Managing Saskatchewan Rangeland
An essential resource tool for Rangeland Managers

The Saskatchewan Forage Council (SFC) and its partners have recently completed the revision of Managing Saskatchewan Rangeland. Originally published in 1990, the updated version of this publication is an essential resource tool for any rangeland manager. The focus of this publication is to contribute to the sustainability of the province's rangeland resources through education of its users. Topics covered in the publication include: plant ecology and growth, biodiversity, Saskatchewan's natural vegetation zones, grazing management and monitoring as well as livestock behaviour, fencing techniques and water development on pastures.

A complete copy can be downloaded from the Saskatchewan Forage Council's website at www.saskforage.ca, or a hard copy can be requested by contacting the SFC office.

Co editors for this publication were Janice Bruynooghe, Executive Director of the Saskatchewan Forage Council and Ross Macdonald, a Range Management Professional. "This publication is a wonderful guide for anyone who is involved with managing native grassland in Saskatchewan", states Bruynooghe. People are encouraged to download the digital version from the SFC website, but hard copies are available by contacting the SFC office. Bruynooghe indicates, "We have already had a steady demand for print copies, but there are still many available for those who prefer a hard copy. Many people were familiar with the previous version of Managing Saskatchewan Rangeland and want to update their resource libraries".

Hard copies of Managing Saskatchewan Rangeland are also available through the offices of several SFC partner agencies such as Ducks Unlimited Canada, Saskatchewan Watershed Authority, PFRA and Saskatchewan Ministry of Agriculture.

Funding for this publication was provided by Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada's Greencover Canada Program.
